Patna 6th October, 2017

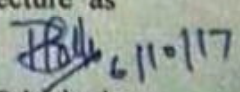

A special lecture on "Gender Sensitization: Needs and Mechanism" was arranged by the Vanijya Mahavidyalaya, Patna University, Patna. This lecture programme was a part of the Patna University Centenary Celebration. The chief speaker of the programme was Prof. Padmalata Thakur, the Head of the Department of History, Patna University, Patna and Chairperson of the Patna University Gender Sensitization Cell.

The programme was inaugurated by Prof. (Dr.) Rash Bihari Prasad Singh, the Vice Chancellor of the Patna University with the lightening of the lamp. The Principal thereafter welcomed the guests including the members of the Patna University Gender Sensitization Cell. The honourable Vice Chancellor was then invited to speak who expressed his happiness on the organization of the special lecture. He said that each individual should be respected irrespective of gender. He observed that we are a part of the changing world in which women have come up as leaders in many sectors but much needs to be done.

The anchor Dr. Chandan Kumar thereafter welcomed the chief speaker Prof. Padmalata Thakur. She defined the topic in a lucid manner and sensitized those present about gender. She informed that the Gender sensitization cell was first formed in the year 2013. Women have to be brought at par with the men and an active participation of those concerned is required. She dwelt on the topic at length and hardly left an aspect of the topic untouched. She concluded her lecture to the satisfaction of all.

On this occasion the honourable members of the Patna University Gender Sensitization Cell Dr. Munawer Jahan, Dr. Sumita Singh, Dr. Rajlakshmi, Dr. Rekha Kumari, Dr. Veena Prasad, Dr. Poonam Singh, teachers of the Vanijya Mahavidyalaya, P.U.
